Introduction

For 3 days, the International Wood Construction Forum will provide a genuine framework for national and international exchanges, with a unique high-level professional conference and exhibition format that brings together the entire profession and all those involved in the forest/wood and biobased industries. With more than 6.000 participants, 250 exhibitors and 350 speakers, the International Wood Construction Forum has become one of the world's leading gatherings for timber/biobased construction, renovation and wooden interior design.

Thanks to its unifying role, it brings together private and public project owners (developers, investors...), project managers (architects, economists, engineers, engineering companies...), builders (carpenters, woodworkers, interior designers and construction companies...), distributors and manufacturers, as well as training and R&D organisations.
